

2010 Women's Leadership Conference Award Winners

Lisa Kluczinsky of Johnson & Johnson received the Behind the Scenes Hero award. Lisa has successfully organized Johnson & Johnson's Trident United Way campaign for more than 5 years. Her energy and dedication helped Johnson & Johnson increase their campaign by over 50% in 2009. Lisa's leadership, coupled with Johnson & Johnson's community-centered corporate culture resulted in an unprecedented Day of Caring 2009 turnout as the entire office was closed so that all employees could volunteer.

Lisa has served in various volunteer roles with Trident United Way and is currently providing valuable leadership to the Corporate Volunteer Council pilot program.

Ginny Deerin, Founder and Executive Director of Wings for Kids, was honored with the Nonprofit Leader award. At Wings, Ginny has created a program that teaches children essential social and emotional life skills needed to succeed. Wings has been widely recognized as innovative, effective, and accountable.

Ginny has long been a deeply committed and involved member of the community, and her leadership has benefited many nonprofits where she has served in various staff and volunteer roles. She is a staunch supporter of Trident United Way, and encourages her employees, many of them college students, to learn about philanthropy through supported of TUW.

Anita Zucker, Chair and CEO of The InterTech Group, Inc., and owner of the Carolina Ice Palace and South Carolina Stingrays received the Role Model award. A former educator and lifelong education advocate, she is known throughout the community as a committed philanthropist and highly regarded business-woman.

Anita has served on numerous boards including the Medical University of South Carolina Foundation, Jewish Studies Inc., and the Coastal Community Foundation of South Carolina. She tirelessly supports Trident United Way with her time and contributions and has chaired many committees and led many efforts including the Board of Directors, Annual Campaign, Day of Caring, and Tocqueville Society.
